Being relatively young compared to “proof of work” (POW), the community is still working towards “proof of stake” (POS) models which provide both a desirable security level and appropriate incentive for validator nodes. The scheme should, as for POW, make sure the expected reward for a node compensates their resource usage. Another aspect though is the fairness of the rewards: peers should not only be compensated correctly on average, the variance of the reward distribution also matters. As nodes can directly reinvest their rewards as new stake, wealth compounds in these systems leading to a ‘rich get richer’ effect.
